SHRIMP SALAD, JEFF'S

Varnish to Imitate Ground Glass. To make a varnish to imitate ground glass dissolve 90 grains of sandarac and 20 grains of mastic in two ounces washed methylated ether, and add, in small quantities, sufficient benzine to make it dry with a suitable grain, too little making the varnish too transparent and an excess making it crapy. The quantity of benzine required depends upon the quality, from one-half to one and one-half ounces, or even more. The best results are obtained from a medium quality. It is important to use pure washed ether, free from spirit.

Kill is His Motto.

No mammal in the entire world, great or small, can compare with the weasels as hunters. They hunt their prey incessantly, following it by scent, and take the lives of a far larger number of victims than they need for food, says the American Forestry Magazine. They kill, and keep on killing, just for the fun of it; and it is only during the cold winter weather, when game becomes scarce, that they conceal for future consumption the bodies of some of the animals they have slain.

Leather From Rat Skins.

That the skin of the rat can be used for leather has been proved, even though an experiment with some thousands of skins imported from France proved in the nineteenth century that the manufacture was not commercially worth while. A pair of shoes made from the skin of the rat proved as soft as the finest kid, but it took six skins to make the one pair, only the back being stout enough for use.

Blood Pressure.

Blood pressure is the pressure of the blood against the walls of the large arteries. It is determined by the force of the heart and the resistance in the small blood vessels. These latter either expand or contract according to conditions. This action is influenced by various factors, namely, excitement, nervousness, poisons in the system and hardening of the arteries.

Curious Pottery.

The use of dried fruits of trees, such as the gourd and the coconut, for holding water and liquid substances is familiar, but it is not so generally known that cups, saucers and jars to take the place of ordinary earthenware are made in the Orient of a glutinous and plastic material entirely of vegetable origin, which is easily moulded and dried.

Ancient Money.

The first coins used by the civilized nations of the ancient world were small metal ingots stamped with a ruler's seal. It is probable that they were first minted in Lydia, the rich Asian kingdom of which Croesus was the most famous king. The "punch-marked" coins of India are assigned to a period older even than that of Buddhism.

Bass Drum and Viol in One.

An orchestral percussive instrument that combines the booming resonance of the drum with the range of the double bass viol, according to Popular Mechanics, is the latest in Russian musical novelties. In form it is a combination of both instruments, the four foot finger board being fixed to a skin covered drum.
